

TEXAS A&M UNIVERSITY
Public Policy
Research Institute

February 13, 2025

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MEDIA ADVISORY

Texas Youth Action Network to Host Statewide Youth Development Conference

College Station, Texas: The Texas A&M University Public Policy Research Institute's Texas Youth Action Network \(TYAN\) will host a continuing education conference with curriculum centered on positive youth development and training for professionals working with youth from across the state of Texas. These community builders will attend training sessions and talks given by expert instructors in the areas of building healthy youth-adult partnerships, organizational development, leadership, and prevention strategies for barriers to success faced by youth.

What: Youth development professional training conference.

When: February 18 – 20, 2025

Where: Embassy Suites by Hilton College Station, 201 University Drive East, College Station, TX 77840

Who: Those working with youth in partnership with both secular and religious organizations across Texas in a broad capacity.

Why: To provide comprehensive support for organizations striving to empower youth.

Media Contact: Lee Towns, Public Policy Research Institute

Email: lee.towns@tamu.edu

The Texas Youth Action Network is an initiative of the Texas Department of State Health Services and guided by the leadership of the Texas A&M University Public Policy Research Institute operating as an authoritative source under the theory of Positive Youth Development, a philosophy that builds on strengths rather than categorizing youth by their deficits. For more information visit <https://tyan.tamu.edu>.